

Hold 3-day program on audio-visual aids; more than 500 attend

More than 500 teachers and school executives were in attendance at the three-day audio-visual education institute held at the university Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Speakers at the opening session of the institute Thursday were C. A. Sjogren of the Martin plant, Lt. James Brown of the navy, Bruce Findlay from Los Angeles and Dean Douglass, representing R. C. A.

Speaking on "Audio-Visual Aids—the Navy Way—World War II," Lt. James W. Brown, officer in charge of training aids at the Great Lakes Naval Training school, said Thursday afternoon that "Six months after Pearl Harbor navy schools had awakened to their urgent need for more and better instructional materials."

"Films show the men how to use gun sights, how to swim through burning oil, how to render first aid for battle injuries. Learning through the medium of films has become as commonplace to the

PICTURE IS GIFT

Alumni presented the University of Omaha with a portrait of Dr. Walter E. Halsey, first dean of the university, at the annual Founder's Day convocation Monday morning, Oct. 9, in the university auditorium. Mrs. Herbert Daniel, '13, presented the picture to Dr. W. H. Thompson, alumnus and dean of the arts college.

Virgil Sharpe of radio station KOIL and a member of the university speech department was the principal speaker on the morning program. He pointed to the opening for young people in the field of radio after the war and added that college work would be useful in a radio career.

President Rowland Haynes also paid tribute to former students now in service.

Three members of the first board of regents, Charles Wilhelm,

A. A. Lamoreaux and Henry E. Maxwell, were presented by Harry S. Byrne, university regent and program chairman for the celebration. E. M. Hosman, chairman of the convocation committee, presided at the meeting.

At the annual business meeting following the evening dinner program, Bernard Combs was elected president of the alumni association. Other officers for the coming year are Virgil Sharpe, vice president; Amy Rohacek, secretary; Ruth Saxton, treasurer; Dorothy Edwards, Dr. W. H. Thompson, Dr. Charles Frandsen, George Pardee, Charles Matthews, Nancy Freeman and Albert Fuller, Jr., executive board.

Charles Matthews, acting president, presided at the dinner meeting, which featured a talk by V. E. Skutt, new member of the board of regents.

Two articles by Warren

Dr. Dana T. Warren of the university physics department has had two of his articles accepted by the Physical Review magazine. The first, "Protone Primaries of Atom Annihilation Cosmic Rays," was a letter to the editor and appeared in the September issue of the magazine. "Atom Annihilation Cosmic Rays at Mexico City" is the title of his second article. It will appear in the November 1-15 issue, according to notice received by Dr. Warren recently.

THE WAR AND YOU

Graduations, promotion

Promoted from second to first lieutenants recently have been John Baker, now head of the physical training department at Moses Lake army air field; Robert C. Fuller, at Hunter field, Ga.; Lloyd L. Lee, battalion adjutant at the cavalry school at Fort Riley, Kans.; Roy J. Murphy, jr., pilot of the B-24 Liberator "Rum Runner" in England; and Alvin Ringhofer, navigator of a B-17 in England.

Lt. Cain

Lt. VanderLaan

Lt. Robert Cain paid a brief visit home on leave during the summer.

Citations, awards

Lt. William Roberts, who has been awarded four oak leaf clusters and the DFC, is now attending instructor's school at Midland, Tex., following his activities with the eighth air force in England.

Also with the eighth A. A. F. is Lt. Alvin Ringhofer, who has been decorated with the air medal for exceptionally meritorious achievement in heavy bombardment missions against enemy-occupied Europe.

Capt. Clifford Norgard has been awarded the first bronze oak leaf cluster for the air medal for meritorious achievement while participating in sustained, long-range serial attacks on the Balkans, Austria and northern Italy. He has completed bombing assaults on Bucharest, Budapest, Sofia and Ploesti.

New stations

Sgt. Charles Karpf is now at the army air base at Santa Ana, Cal. S/Sgt. Gerald Blunk, who has returned from two years service in the Mediterranean area, is now at the A. A. F. redistribution station at Miami Beach, Fla. Ervin W. Lowery, Jr., is now at the A. A. F. training command school at Yale university for work in communications. Cpl. Jack Hughes and Sgt. Don Nelsen are with the 51st finance disbursing section now "somewhere in France."

Capt. Stanton Salisbury is now the officer in charge at the naval training school for chaplains at Williamsburg, Va. Lt. Karl Carlson and Lt. John Eggleston have been assigned to Peterson field, Colorado Springs, Colo., for combat training.

Lt. Vernon Olson, in the south

Letters from the boys

T/4 William La Rue writes from Camp Lee, Va., "After a 27-months tour of overseas duty, I am presently stationed at Camp Lee, following a 21-day furlough at home. While overseas I was in Ireland, Scotland, England and North Africa."

Cpl. Ralph Oppido writes his thanks for the "morale booster—the Gateway," which he has received. He says, "New Guinea is rather warm right now—even though it is the winter season here. Rains are quite frequent and a 'poncho' always comes in handy."

Capt. Meyer Crandall writes to Prof. Raymond Maxwell that he is sorry he didn't take French along with his Spanish as he is now in France. "Been here quite a while," he said, "as I was among the first to land. We work seven days a week, 6 a. m. to 11 p. m. with an inspection division—so we get very little time off."

Lt. Gerald Arkfeld, who received his promotion to first lieutenant in March overseas, writes, "We glider pilots showed the Japs that a lot of things could be carried in gliders that had not been intended to be carried by them." He is now in India with the first A. C. G.

Cpl. Anderson

Lt. Lee

Homer Starr, now with the Seabees in the Hawaiian Islands, wrote to the Gateway just before leaving Camp Rousseau, Calif., that he had been on military training for several weeks and he had become quite enamored of his stubby new carbine. "It's as easy to aim as a slingshot," he says. "Also, I bought a murderous-looking imported Mexican dagger to carry overseas. I'll probably never use it, but think of its post-war value as a souvenir to bring home and impress people with!"

Ensign Ronald Peterson, now with the Pacific fleet, writes, "You should be here to enjoy the swell spring weather with me. No, I'm not kidding," he says, "it is spring here and the climate is perfect. However, I can't say the same about the area around the equator. When we crossed it, it was pretty hot—in more ways than one. I had to go through the traditional initiation to become a Shellback in King Neptune's Domain. I also belong to the Imperial Domain of the Golden Dragon now for crossing the international date line."

Form men's chorus

Ten men are forming a men's chorus, to meet at noon Mondays and Wednesdays in room 438, according to Miss Elizabeth Kaho of the music department. Men interested may still join the class.

Wardle happy to be back on O. U. campus

"Omahans are very pleasant, friendly and generous," says Dr. Ralph M. Wardle, associate professor in the English department.

Dr. Wardle has returned to the University of Omaha after four years on the faculty at Cornell.

"I have noticed that there is a smaller student body and smaller faculty than when I was here from 1938-1940," Dr. Wardle declared. "However, I think it is much more comfortable this way, and I can not truthfully say that I am longing for the old days to return."

"A Primer for Readers," written by Dr. Wardle, is being used in English 212 classes. He is working on another book at the present time—a biography of Mary Wollstonecraft Godwin, who has been called the first English feminist.

At Cornell, Dr. Wardle taught mostly classes of service men. Service men students are too hurried and do not have enough time to read or browse in the library, he believes.

"I prefer the atmosphere around the university here," Dr. Wardle concluded, "and I'm happy to be back again."

How green is our campus

James McCauley

FRESHMAN FACTS OF LIFE—(Attention upper classmen under 21: unless you are in the presence of an adult or freshman, do not read this!)—60 per cent of O'ers are greenlings. Coeds are at the long end of a 2 1/4-1 sex ratio. This year's frosh class constitutes a 47-student jump over last year's class enrollment. However, despite the increase, the manpower situation has gone from bad to worse. Where there were 100 freshman men last year, there are but 85 today.

FROSTUNE TELLER—It looks like intramural sports may be the only athletics this year. Chances for a '45 basket ball team are dark . . . slightly better for a track team, however, but nothing to get excited about. Most of the possible athletes are working. Student Council officials are pleased with the turnout at the Frosh Mixer . . . may mean more socials will be arranged. Wednesday's three-man frosh presidential race is still wide open. Results will hinge on how many active supporters each candidate can dig up from their former high school mob. Dick Johnson is from Benson, Arthur Novack hails from North and Elmyra Nufer, representing the 2 1/4's (to 1) is also from North.

PAINTING THE TOWN GREEN—They mixed us up right proper at the Freshman Mixer . . . Dean "Cupid" Lucas did his bit by bringing together many a freshman and fresh-miss. Frosh class prexy candidates were "campaigning" for election, among the opposite sex, very effectively. Everyone agreed that PE's a cinch after that rugged conga line . . . understand registrar's office will publish the casualty list tomorrow . . . Yes, we stepped on a couple ourselves. The orchestra would, and did, play anything this side of the Star Spangled Banner.

QUOTES OF THE WEEK—Mrs. Norma Edger, book store . . .

Evening council maps election and programs

Members of the School of Adult Education Student Council met Tuesday evening, Oct. 10, in the faculty clubroom with E. M. Hosman, director of the evening school, to plan the council election, slated for tomorrow night, and to discuss plans for arranging suitable programs for adult education students.

Representatives on the council this year are:

Ruby Thorndike, history; David Reins, drafting; Alice Musselman, world literature; Irene Fisher, mathematics; Betty Rushlau, clothing; Mrs. Aldrew Riffe, advanced composition; Eleanor Kruse, Spanish; Joseph Reeves, sociology; Marie Beckwith, utopias; Marilee Steinman, radio broadcasting; Jeanie Moore, sociology; Shirley Mitchell, drawing; Paul Garrett, navigation; Elleen Lang, interior decorating; Frank Josephson, slide rule, and Joanne Franco, Spanish.

Margaret Harrison and Ann Sycora of last year's council also attended the meeting last week.

"Upper classmen think we know nothing. Freshmen think we know everything." John Foley, senior . . . (about freshman) "I love them"—especially, that one brunette." Valerie Swanson, freshman . . . "Freshman fellows all have an inferior feeling toward themselves—except— . . ." Doc Thompson, psych. prof. . . "From your freshman psychological exams, we can tell if you are going to pass in your classes, if you will someday be thrown out of school and if you are going to graduate. However, our findings are subject to a 20 per cent error. After correcting this year's exams, we are hoping that a lot of you are in that 20 per cent group."

PORTRAITS IN GREEN—Bev-erly Horne likes people, dancing, horseback riding and—to her current misery—a juicy, brown steak. Jim Smith, FBI employee, after peering out of a host of textbooks, thinks there is too much studying to be done. Jackie Henry goes for horseback riding, ice cream and dancing. John Kirkland, a chess enthusiast, is happy if he can always be seated before a seven-course dinner.

PERSONAL NOTES—Cocker Spaniel feeding occupied the attention recently of Anna Johnson, Loys Spellman, and Marilyn Andersen . . . saw the three gals pooling their savings of six cents to give the red pooch some milk. Between classes—Tom Shea catches up on his studying in the student lounge while "keeping track" of the coed lovelies sitting in corner; Ray Olson spends his time batting a table tennis ball around and Bob Miller crams the Spanish he didn't get the night before.

MAIL BAGGING—This column welcomes contributions from any source which deal with freshman life on the campus. They will be printed in this department. Send it to The Gateway, care of this column. Make it brief. Name of contributor must be included. However, if desired, senders name will be kept in confidence. Exclusive items are preferred.

Faculty members recall long-past vacations

Faculty members at the university worked, fished and studied during the summer months. Gateway reporters uncovered the following details:

Roderic B. Crane of the economics department spent ten days of fishing on the Princess Louisa Island in Canada this summer. Among his bait were plugs, pearl wobblers, spoons and her-ring. But unlike most fishermen, Mr. Crane openly admits that the unusual incident in his trip was the fact that he did not catch one single fish!

Miss Dorothy Wertman in the home economics department could make no comment on her vacation since she didn't have one. Instead Miss Wertman was working six days a week and sometimes evenings as a supervisor in the Wartime Canning Administration located at Flint, Mich. Miss Wertman said, "I enjoyed working there very much."

Dr. Benjamin Boyce of the English department traveled east to Cambridge, Mass., for a month this summer where he studied seventeenth century literature in the Harvard library. Dr. Boyce admitted working on material for a book which he is writing. He returned to Omaha by way of Lake Superior.

The new women's physical education instructor, Miss Enid Wolcott, taught at the State Teachers college at Kearney, Nebr., until July 1 this summer. She then returned to her home in Central City and worked in her garden and house for the remainder of her vacation.

Teach summer school

C. H. Prewett of the engineering department remained home this summer in order to instruct Martin bomber plant employees in an engineering course.

Dr. T. Earl Sullenger of the sociology department taught classes during the first seven weeks this summer. He spent two weeks on a farm and then vacationed in Kentucky. Dr. Sullenger is a victory garden enthusiast and has his own garden here each year.

Robert Mossholder of the journalism department "slaved" at both his university job and the Rock Island Motor Transit company all summer. In addition, he had a victory garden again this year.

Dr. Leslie O. Taylor of the education department summed up his experience as follows: "I taught school in the stepped-up college program and before the summer was over, little wheels were spinning about in my head." He also mentioned a trip to the Appalachians.

Mrs. Gloria Sinnett of the business department taught summer school until Aug. 12, when she took a trip to St. Louis. She devoted the latter part of her summer to canning the produce of her victory garden.

Dr. Wilfred Payne of the philosophy department worked several weeks at Chicago university. He asserts that he spent much time swimming, but wasted still more. He was pleased to have school start, as he was anxious to return to action.

Work in war plant

Two members of the university English department decided to help the war effort during the summer months and went to work at the Nebraska Ordnance plant at Meade. Harry F. Fore spent 14 weeks there and then vacationed for a week in Chicago. Mrs. Mildred Gearhart taught English in the first session of summer school and then worked for seven weeks at Meade. She took "a real vacation" at Camp Brewster for nine days.

Christopher S. Espinosa's summer vacation was spent teaching the Romance languages in Omaha university's summer school.

W. Fred Farrar of the business administration department worked at the Glen L. Martin bomber plant. He worked there for 16 months.

Another teacher in summer school was Dr. James M. Earl. He taught the first session and then spent six weeks in Minneapolis, Minn., and St. Croix, Wis. Although he was near a lake, he did no fishing, he said.

Both Mrs. Mary Padou Young, associate dean of students, and Mrs. Pearl Weber of the psychology department vacationed at home this summer.

Mr. Hoff, finance secretary, took his 9-year-old son to Neligh, Nebr., for a short week-end of fishing. He then attended a visual education conference in Chicago, and assisted in lining up the staff for the visual education institute which will be held here in October.

Writes magazine articles

The Physical Review for September 1 and 15 contains an article submitted by Dr. Dana T. Warren of the physics department on Proton Primaries of Atom-Annihilation Cosmic Rays. Another article, Atom-Annihilation Cosmic Rays at Mexico City, has been accepted and will appear at a later date. Dr. Warren spent a month at Nederland, Colo., in the mountains.

Dr. Nell Ward of the chemistry department visited Lake Minnewaska, in Glenwood, Minn., for two weeks. Miss Ward said she went to the Minnesota State Fair in Minneapolis and a pop concert and ice-revue in St. Paul.

A log cabin in Minnesota was the site for six weeks of rest for Miss Frances Wood of the reading clinic. Miss Wood owns the cabin and considers it her "second home."

Dr. Hugh Tudor, government professor, while teaching his first summer class, was also busy attending civic meetings to aid him in his research on city and government organizations.

Mr. Harry Rice of the mathematics department taught classes during the summer months and also raised a large victory garden of which he is very proud. Some of the faculty members know of his gardening achievements because they sampled the canteloupe from his garden here in the faculty clubroom. In addition to the canteloupe, Mr. Rice has raised 125 watermelons and he has 300 quarts of canned vegetables to prove his ability as a victory gardener.

Dr. John Stipp of the history department had just finished teaching classes this summer at Ohio State university in Columbus, Ohio, when he and his family moved to Omaha. It was their first trip west.

Dr. Ralph Wardle has rejoined the Omaha university faculty after teaching English at Cornell university. Last summer he instructed members of the armed forces in the V-12 program at Cornell.

Lands Big Fish

Mr. E. M. Hosman, adult education director, landed a four pound bass after a very good fight and was stung by hornets while on his vacation in his summer home. If any one thinks that remodeling a wheelbarrow is a cinch, Mr. Hosman adds, he has found out differently. There seem to be many things to be taken into consideration, plus wishful hopes of assistance from Engineers Kurtz and Prewett.

Dr. Russel Derbyshire has spent the entire summer here at the university, where he has been busy on a paper on the sulphur drug and vitamin deficiencies. This research work has been written up for the Iowa State College Journal of Science.

"Three large watermelons were the fruits of my summer vacation," John W. Lucas, dean of students, informed The Gateway. The watermelons were harvested from his victory garden. Mr. Lucas, however, neglected his gardening duties long enough to visit some friends and relatives in Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Elizabeth Kaho, music teacher, went on "the other side of the desk" for her vacation. She spent her summer in New York writing up her dissertation for a doctor's degree.

Miss Gertrude Kincaide's only respite came with the end of the summer session. The French teacher then journeyed, with Dr. Nell Ward of the chemistry department, to Lake Minnewaska, Minn.

Miss Ellen Lord, librarian, dodged books long enough to make a trip to Minnesota the latter part of August. However, according to Miss Lord, her vacation had its drawbacks. "I was sick most of the time," she reports.

John W. Kurtz, engineering, reports that he "vacationed" from Omaha university by accepting a summer teaching position elsewhere.

Dr. Bertha A. Koch, head of the art department, spent the last half of the summer working in occupational therapy at a hospital at Staten Island, N. Y. Both Dr. Koch and her husband are interested in occupational therapy in the field of pottery.

Miss Alice Smith, registrar, handled registrations of about one thousand students at the university's summer sessions. Her two weeks' vacation was spent at her home in Omaha.

W.A.A. initiation Oct. 20

Initiation of new members in W. A. A. will be held Oct. 20, according to Dorothy Mayhall, chairman of the initiation committee. The W. A. A. tea, held Oct. 5 in the auditorium, was attended by approximately 115 girls. At that time, the new sponsor, Miss Enid Wolcott, was introduced as well as the officers for the year. Joan Kurtz is president; Dorothy Mayhall, vice president; Jane Sauter, secretary; Maxine Paulson, treasurer; Barbara Muir, intramural board head; Agnes Stevenson, social chairman; and Leatrice Gold publicity chairman.

Ask 100 per cent participation in War Fund drive

With the slogan "100 per cent participation," the Student Council and Chairman John W. Lucas, dean of students, started the annual United War and Community Fund drive at the University of Omaha last Monday.

"This year we are hoping," said Dean Lucas, "that every member of the student body, of the faculty, and of the administration will give and give as much as he can."

Harry L. Rice, faculty member, is in charge of solicitations from the faculty and the administrative staff; Virginia Hefflinger, Pi Omega Pi, is student director.

Helping Miss Hefflinger are Helene Francen, Gamma Sigma Omicron; Beth Kroll, Kappa Psi Delta; Garnett Havelka, Phi Delta Psi; Evelyn Norberg, Sigma Chi Omicron; and Frances Martin, Independent.

For the students still not reached by this committee, the Feathers and Student Council will set up a booth in the lower hall for contributions.

"We hope the students, staff and faculty realize the responsibility of carrying this campaign through 100 per cent," Dean Lucas stated. "And we are confident of the fine results we have had in former years."

The drive ends Wednesday, October 25.

navy man as reading or listening to a chief deliver a discourse on a subject."

Speaking in the afternoon on "Just What Has Education Learned About Training Aids—and What Can Your Community Do Now?" Bruce Findlay, director of audio-visual education of the Los Angeles schools, told the group that pictures for the classroom must be more than just illustrated "canned" lectures. Teaching must be put into them, he said.

"Pictures, pictures, pictures do not solve the problem of education through film," Findlay stated. "We learn by doing; hence, the students should participate in the movie. As audience interest is kept up in quiz programs by the silent participation of each listener, so should the classroom movies become part of the class discussions."

"Fifty-three per cent of public opinion is swayed by radio according to recent surveys," Dean Douglass, regional manager of the education department of RCA told teachers and executives attending the evening dinner program at the university. Therefore, he added, educational institutions must make more use of this valuable medium.

Among the other nationally known authorities who spoke during the three-day conference were Dr. Walter Wittich of the University of Wisconsin, Dr. V. C. Arnsperger of Encyclopedia Britannica Films company and Dr. Anatole Lindsey, former director of visual education for the League of Nations.

HUMANITIES FELLOWS ARE CHOSEN

Humanities fellows selected to lead this year's discussion groups in the humanities are Alabelle Hunter, Patricia Neevel and Mrs. Margaret Schleh, it was announced last week by Dr. Wilfred Payne, head of the humanities department.

The duties of the fellows are to preside over the discussions groups, stated Dr. Payne, and to encourage students to join in discussions and give their own opinions.

"The fellows are selected for their intelligence and interest and because they are 'real people,'" according to the humanities professor.

"We want them to be interested enough to want to take humanities over again."

Mrs. Schleh, a senior, is president of the Intersorority Council and Sigma Chi Omicron, is publicity chairman of Feathers and was purchasing chairman of the War Room last year.

Miss Neevel, a sophomore, is working in the library this year and was a member of Gamma Sigma Omicron and W. A. A. last year.

Miss Hunter has been active in the music department and has provided accompaniments for the Ma-le Day show, W. A. A. Carnival and other entertainments.
